

Apply for a Canine Partner

Applicant Guide

The purpose of the Canine Partners Applicant Guide is to provide more detailed information on the process of how to apply for one of our amazing dogs and how we create life-changing partnerships. We will provide details regarding our eligibility criteria and what to expect of our application process, the assessment process and when taking one of our dogs home. We will also provide you with details about canine partner ownership and other useful material to explore.

What we do

Canine Partners is a registered assistance dog charity that transforms the lives of people with physical disabilities by partnering them with assistance dogs. Our dogs bring a greater independence and quality of life to their partners, offering security, companionship, and practical help with everyday household tasks. Our dogs also provide psychological and social benefits including increased independence, confidence, social interaction and self-esteem.

How we train our dogs

At Canine Partners we train our dogs to carry out practical task work in order to make our applicants' lives easier and enhance their independence. We bring our dogs up to be well socialised in various environments and to have a high level of obedience. We mainly train Labradors, Golden Retrievers and crosses between the two breeds. We are currently expanding our own breeding programme and our aim is for at least 80% of our assistance dogs to come from our own breeding scheme in the future.

Puppies from our own litters, and those specially selected from external breeders, are then placed with a volunteer puppy parent at eight weeks old to continue their two-year training programme.

Puppy Training

Once our puppies enter puppy training, our puppy parents focus on training basic obedience and socialisation in a variety of locations and environments. They also begin to train the basic core skills that are later developed into the practical task work.

Advanced Training

From 14-15 months old, our dogs enter the final stages of training and are overseen by a specialist Advanced Trainer at one of our two training centres. Throughout advanced training, our dogs are housed in kennels during the week, and then spend their weekends in homes with volunteer fosterers.

During training, the core skills they have already learnt in puppyhood are then progressed onto more complex, practical task work. Our dogs continue with obedience training and visit local towns and shops to ensure they are confident and well-behaved in all situations. The dogs are exercised on a regular basis, and this is expected to be maintained throughout the partnership.

During advanced training, our dogs are carefully assessed and specifically matched with one of our applicants on the waiting list. We can then tailor the rest of the dog's advanced training to best suit their partner's needs.

How do canine partners transform lives?

Canine partners are trained to provide independence to individuals with physical disabilities. The level of independence one of our dogs may provide is dependent upon each individual's circumstances; one person's independence could be defined very differently to another's.

“ I can't remember my life before Oxford. He's changed my life for the better. It's like being the complete package; me and Oxford. I am much more confident with him by my side and I feel whole again. I can now go out and go to different places as being with Oxford gives me the confidence to. ”
Majid Sohrabi and canine partner Oxford

Our canine partners are trained to deal with and assist in all types of situations; from everyday chores, to responding in an emergency. If someone is living with a physical disability which can make things difficult or painful, our specially trained dogs are there to help with physical tasks. They are trained to be able to carry out three core skills: touch, tug and retrieve.

These three skills are then utilised to develop more complex task work such as:

- Retrieving dropped items
- Helping with undressing

- Opening and closing doors
- Pressing various switches when out in public e.g. door buttons or lift buttons
- Fetching help in an emergency e.g. pressing an alarm button, retrieving the phone or going and getting someone within the home

There are many more tasks which our dogs are capable of learning. These are often specifically trained to an individual's needs in advanced training and then training continues once home with their partner.

As well as practical support, our dogs can provide many psychological benefits such as:

- Increased independence, confidence, motivation and self-esteem
- Companionship, security and unconditional love
- A talking point, often leading to increased social interaction
- Helping to return to work, voluntary positions or further education
- Reducing reliance on human carers and, in some cases, medication

What to consider

In return for all of the above benefits, every partner has to work hard to maintain a strong bond with their dog. Our dogs are not 'finished products' when they return home; they require ongoing support and training from their partner, with our Aftercare Team there to provide support throughout the partnership.

In order to get the most out of their dogs, our partners are responsible for daily exercise, feeding, grooming, training and playing. We understand some partners may require support from family or a team with some areas of the dog's care. This will be explored in the assessment process. However, we aim for our partners to take as much responsibility for their dogs themselves as possible.

Part of the application and assessment process involves us requesting at least one medical report from an applicant's GP or a consultant who specifically supports them with their condition. This will allow us to learn more about an individual's needs and begin to assess whether one of our dogs can enhance their independence.

Individuals with a physical disability who also have a hearing or visual impairment are welcome to apply. Our dogs are not usually trained to assist with any visual or hearing impairments as standard. However, we work with Guide Dogs for the Blind and Hearing Dogs for Deaf People to provide dual purpose assistance dogs, which requires a more specific application and assessment process. For any enquiries about dual purpose assistance dogs, please contact: applicationsenquiries@caninepartners.org.uk.

The tasks that Ethan and I can do together give me a lot of freedom and bring real joy. I no longer have a dependence on others to make me feel safe and secure. He's brought me so much happiness and so much colour to my life, that I have an incredibly hard time imagining my world without him.

How to apply

In order to apply for one of our dogs, keep an eye on our website. This is where we publish our opening dates and the region we will be opening applications to. If you wish to apply and are within the region we open applications to, we would encourage you to check your eligibility before applying. To complete the first stage of application during our opening times, you will need to email us at the designated date and time with the correct information, which will be provided on our website. If you are unable to email or you are unsure of your eligibility, you can contact the Applications Team in advance to discuss alternative options before completing the first stage application on the opening date.

Due to the high demand for our amazing dogs, we will be opening to new applications for short periods of time, and in different regions within the UK, so as to manage our applicants' waiting times as efficiently as possible.

If your first stage application is successful, you will then be asked to attend an Applicant Discovery Day.

Applicant Discovery Days

These are days that are compulsory for applicants to attend so as to gain sufficient information about what the next stage of the application process will involve.

- The days will be carried out at our Southern Training Centre in West Sussex or at our Midlands Training Centre in Leicestershire.
- Up to 20 potential applicants could be in attendance at each day.
- The day will include presentations giving further information about the application process and what is involved when taking on a canine partner.
- Applicants will have to confirm within one week after this day if they still wish to move on to the next stage of their application.

Assessment

In order to add an applicant onto our waiting list we need to thoroughly assess their suitability and need for a canine partner. This is done through the various paperwork we request initially and will be followed up by an individual assessment, which may be carried out at one of our training centres or closer to an applicant's location. This assessment will be of the individual's needs and suitability alongside practical assessment of their dog handling. We will then further assess each applicant's home and any pet dogs, work places or educational institutions that may be relevant.

Completion of the application process

The waiting list

If your application is successful and once you have been added onto the waiting list, you will continue making your way up the list until we can look at matching a dog to you. The wait time is variable and is often dependent upon each individual's needs. A more specific timeframe can be given to each applicant on the date they are added onto the list.

Matching visit

When an applicant nears the top of the list and a suitable dog becomes available, the dog's Advanced Trainer will call the applicant and invite them into one of our two training centres to meet the dog.

The matching visit is a chance for applicants to meet their potential dog and see if he/she is the right dog for them. It is also a chance for our trainers to see if they feel it is the right match for the applicant and for the dog.

A match will usually be confirmed two to three days after the matching visit. This gives the trainer and the applicant the chance to process the day and decide if it is definitely the right match. If a match is looking unsuccessful from the trainer's point of view, you will be informed on the matching visit.

After the matching visit, an applicant will usually have a maximum of eight weeks before attending a two-week residential training course.

Training course

In order to create the most successful partnerships, at the end of the dog's advanced training, the applicant is invited to a two-week residential course at one of our centres. There would usually be two to four people on any one training course so we can continue to place as many dogs as possible each year. This also allows applicants the chance to socialise and interact with other people who are also training with their new dog.

Each applicant will train with their chosen canine partner under the guidance of one of our Advanced Trainers. The applicant learns how to work with their dog in varying environments, both onsite at the centre and offsite in public places. The applicant will learn how to continue and maintain their dog's training and how to ensure their dog's welfare needs are being met, as well as what motivates their dog to work. One of the main purposes of the two-week training course is for the partnership to begin to form a bond, getting to know each other without usual day to day distractions at home.

We have specifically adapted accommodation to cater for most people's needs with varying equipment and adaptations. Any concerns about ensuring the accommodation meets the applicants needs, can be discussed further throughout the application process.

We do encourage applicants to bring someone with them, if possible, during their stay, to help support them with any personal care and for moral support. If an individual is unable to bring someone with them, we will discuss alternative options regarding fulfilling the applicant's care needs.

Our residential accommodation is run by our highly capable housekeeping team, who endeavour to make applicants' stay as comfortable as possible. The course is fully catered for the full two weeks and specific dietary requirements can be discussed with housekeeping directly on the matching visit.

Applicants will find out more about the two-week training course throughout the full application and assessment process.

Partnership and Aftercare

Returning home and aftercare support

Our partners (term for an applicant who is now placed with a canine partner) benefit from ongoing support from our Aftercare Team once they take on their canine partner. Our Aftercare Team will be on hand to offer training and behavioural input to help things go smoothly, from the moment a partner goes home from the training course, right up to the dog's retirement. We are proud to be able to provide such early support and, from experience, we have identified that this aids in the ongoing and long term success of our partnerships.

We have a network of Aftercare Instructors and Assistants across the UK, one of whom will be allocated to each new partnership. Our Aftercare Team are there to:

- monitor the dog's health and wellbeing to ensure their welfare
- help set consistent routines and training in the early days of partnership
- assist with any training or behaviour issues that may arise
- help a partner to train any new tasks or improve existing task work
- give advice and support where needed in regards to their canine partner

- help the partner manage the dog's health routine
- help support with any access issues or refusal of entry
- be an initial point of contact for the partner for any queries and advice – we do also have an emergency mobile number which all partnerships have access to for if/when they cannot get hold of their usual aftercare in an emergency e.g. overnight or outside of the Aftercare Team's working hours.

The visits from our Aftercare Team are arranged with the partners and carried out in their home environments. Visits will include work in the home alongside accompanying partnerships on off-lead exercise and into public places that the partnership usually visits. We have a specific visit schedule for new partnerships, with visits taking place more often in the early months, and progressing to twice a year after the first year of placement.

We do not charge our partners for the training or purchase of our dogs as they remain under the ownership of Canine Partners at all times. However we have to request a £1 custodian fee when signing our Dog Custodianship agreement in order to legalise the contract. The ongoing costs of dog ownership are fully taken on by the partners, alongside the cost involved in the application, assessment and training process.

When taking on a canine partner, every applicant will be provided with a basic home starter pack for their dog. There will always be extra items that will be required to be purchased by the applicant which could be items that the dog needs or more specific items to an individual in order for them to handle their dog most effectively.

If an applicant is concerned about being able to cover all of the partnership costs, we would encourage them to contact our Applications Team to discuss this further.

General Guidelines

We have several policies and guidelines that are applicable throughout the application and partnership process. It is worth potential applicants being aware of these before applying.

Our mission

Our mission is to transform the lives of people with disabilities through partnership with our specially trained assistance dogs. We aim to achieve our mission at Canine Partners through our values.

Our values

We have six main values here at Canine Partners which we encourage all of our staff and volunteers to embrace throughout their work. Our values are:

- Excellence
We always aim for the very highest standards. We never accept anything less and work hard to make improvements where necessary.
- Passion
We are passionate about our work and the mission of our Charity. We throw ourselves into everything as much as possible and enjoy the rewards.
- Teamwork
We are a multidisciplinary team, spread across the UK. We support each other, through good times and the not so good.
- The personal touch
We foster a friendly family feel towards anyone with whom we come into contact. Whenever possible we are flexible and seek to tailor-make our service to every individual.
- Innovation
We aim to lead the way in everything we do becoming ever more expert. We try new things, in the full knowledge that some things work and some things do not but if you never try, you will never know. We welcome any new ideas.
- Respect
We always aim to deal with other people in the way we would ideally like to be dealt with. Canine Partners aim to create an atmosphere where people are treated with dignity and respect. We encourage trust and openness. These standards are reflected in the behaviour and conduct of our staff. We expect a similar approach from applicants and partners.

We welcome a professional working relationship between our staff and partners. Our staff are expected to conduct themselves in a professional manner and we have policies available to staff to outline acceptable conduct. These include areas such as: social media, exchange of personal details and gifts.

Our staff are required to visit you in the home to check on your progress and support you in your journey. When you agree to continue with your application and receive a canine partner from us, you are agreeing that staff will visit you as necessary at pre-arranged dates and times.

If the charity learns of any risks that affect our dogs' or staff's safety, we reserve the right to refuse to accept an application or continue a working relationship. Examples may include: relevant criminal convictions or environmental circumstances such as the living environment.

We ask that:

- The charity operates a zero tolerance policy to physical, verbal and electronic abuse to all
- You display behaviour that is tolerant and non-discriminatory in working with us
- You believe you are able to provide the level of commitment and co-operation that is required to maintain a successful working partnership with a canine partner and with the charity

Applicant Agreement:

As part of the application process every applicant will sign an applicant agreement. This agreement will summarise and highlight all of the responsibilities and expectations of taking on a canine partner.

Custodianship Agreement:

While Canine Partners maintains ownership of the dog, the applicant is the custodian of the dog. This means the applicant would be responsible for the dog's day to day care and training, including the costs of the dog. During the two week residential training course, all applicants will sign a custodian agreement to officially and legally take on this responsibility.

Insurance cover:

All Canine Partners' dogs are insured with The Insurance Emporium on a specific Assistance Dog Policy. This cannot be changed upon a dog going home with a partner, and the dog must remain on this policy for its full working life.

Vet fees can easily reach thousands of pounds; Canine Partners insist that partners keep the insurance policy paid and up to date to ensure that their canine partner would receive the necessary treatment if required. Within the dog Custodian Agreement, partners will sign to state that they will continue with Canine Partners' recommended insurance.

Feeding a canine partner:

All canine partners are fed on charity approved premium dog food (Purina Pro Plan as standard), unless health/dietary requirements require otherwise. The partner is responsible for paying for this. Any dietary changes must be pre-approved with the charity. Within the Dog Custodianship Agreement, partners will sign to state that they will continue with the Canine Partners approved food for their dog.

Assistance Dogs United Kingdom (ADUK) required health cover for an assistance dog:

“ADUK acknowledges that in order to prevent any risk to people’s health, all accredited assistance dogs must be regularly vaccinated, wormed and treated with flea control applications, in accordance with the very latest veterinary advice, using the very best products”

Source: assistancedogs.org.uk

All dogs must be kept in good health with regular health checking (6 monthly health checks at the vet), grooming and clipping as required for specific breed types.

All non-routine healthcare would need to be pre-approved by the charity’s Aftercare Manager. We may recommend specific referral veterinary practices for some treatment of our dogs. This does not include emergency care.

All health costs are to be covered by the partner and/or the insurance company (where applicable). If partners are struggling to cover costs, they must inform the Aftercare Team as soon as possible so that options can be explored.

All of our working dogs must be fully vaccinated. Canine Partners states it’s dogs need to be covered against the following parasites at all times during their working life:

- Fleas
- Ticks
- Lungworm
- Roundworm
- Tapeworm

Assistance dogs’ vaccination costs can be reimbursed from the manufacturer by the vet, but partners may still be charged a consultation fee.

Kennels, vets and emergency contacts:

Before adding an applicant onto our waiting list, we will request an emergency cover form to be completed and sent to us. Every partner must identify:

- Boarding kennels identified for emergencies or for longer periods of time when a partner may be abroad or somewhere unsuitable for a dog to accompany them.
- An accessible vet, and method to get the dog there.

- Two emergency contacts that can be responsible for overseeing the dog in the short-term in an emergency or to take the dog to an identified kennels to stay at the cost of the partner.

Pet dogs and taking on a canine partner:

- We will only accept applications from people who have a maximum of one pet dog in the home.
- In the case of successor applicants, if they wish their retired dog to stay in the home alongside one pet dog (therefore exceeding the maximum number of dogs in the home), these circumstances and their ability to reapply will be assessed on an individual basis.
- If an applicant were to already have a canine partner alongside a pet dog and then acquired an additional pet dog, they may not qualify to reapply for a successor dog in the future.
- During the application and assessment process, any pet dog will need to be assessed for its suitability to live alongside a canine partner and not disrupt their ability to work.

Travelling abroad:

Permission must be requested in writing to take any canine partner out of the UK, to European destinations only. Partnerships must have been together six months before an application will be considered for panel review. If approval is agreed, the partner is responsible for the cost of the pet passport and any change in healthcare treatments for this trip.

Applications appeal process

The information we get from the application process helps us to make a decision as to whether an assistance dog is suitable. We have a duty of care for our dogs' welfare, and also to our supporters who wish to see the most effective use of our funds. Therefore, we sometimes have to make decisions that result in an application being declined. All applicants have the opportunity to appeal our decisions and the appeal process can be found in Appendix 2.

How we handle applicants' information

Canine Partners will only process or use your personal information if we have:

- Asked you and have a record of your first stage application and recent consent for us to do so, or
- A 'legitimate interest' to do so in order to support our charitable purposes. Our use will be fair and balanced and never unduly have an impact on your rights, or
- A contract with you that we can only fulfil by using your personal information, for example to send you an item that you have requested, or
- A legal obligation to use or disclose information about you, for example we are required by law to keep records of gifts that are given to us with Gift Aid for four years, or
- In extreme situations, such as an accident or medical emergency, we may share your personal details with the emergency services if it is essential for the preservation of life (yours or another person) for us to do so. This falls under the term 'vital interest' for using your personal information. After the emergency, we will always aim to inform you about your information was used in that situation.

We will not unduly prioritise our interests as a charity over your interests as an individual. We will always balance our interests with your rights. We will only use personal information in a way and for a purpose that you would reasonably expect in accordance with this policy.

Canine Partners will not rent, swap or sell your personal information to other organisations for them to use in their own marketing activities.

Safeguarding

We have staff members trained in safeguarding and our applicants' and partners' wellbeing is our major concern. We therefore withhold the right to disclose information to emergency services or medical professionals if we deem it necessary in a safeguarding emergency.

Full policy

We follow GDPR guidelines and have a staff member responsible for managing this. Please refer to our website for our full privacy policy: caninepartners.org.uk/privacy-policy/

Canine Partners reserves the right to review its policies and make changes in the interest of creating and maintaining successful partnerships between partners. Updated policies and procedures will be shared with all applicants and recipients as required.

Implications of dog ownership

Whether someone is a first time or an experienced dog owner, it is important to thoroughly explore the implications of general dog ownership before applying for a canine partner. Our dogs are highly trained and aim to increase someone's independence. However, they still have all the requirements of a pet dog and this can be a considerable responsibility to take on.

Please find below a brief outline of some basic areas of dog care which could impact on someone's life when taking on a dog:

- Early morning and evening toileting requirements as well as regular opportunities throughout the day.
- Morning and evening feeding routines to be kept at roughly the same times each day where possible.
- Daily exercise needs: Canine Partners recommends ideally at least 45 minutes a day with 4 times a week off lead exercise.
- Ongoing training and upkeep of obedience routines.
- Managing any potentially inappropriate or unwanted behaviours e.g. barking, scavenging etc.

- Routine vet visits as well as potential emergency visits.
- Toileting accidents due to illness and dealing with the implications of this.
- Preparation of boarding kennels or someone to look after your dog if booking holidays or going to places where a dog could not go (less so with assistance dogs but still advised for dogs to stay at home if travelling abroad for a holiday).
- Preparing your home for safe introduction of a dog e.g. no dangerous objects, medications stored safely, food items out of reach etc.
- Provision of a safe and comfortable resting space.
- Provision of fresh water at all times.

There is a lot of information available that further outlines the implications of dog ownership and we would encourage anyone interested in applying, to explore this area further. Some useful resources could be as follows:

- Various dog ownership books; if researching in books, bear in mind Canine Partners uses ‘reward-based’ dog training techniques.
- Online resources that outline dog ownership and what to expect
- Dogs Trust have a section on “help & advice”
www.dogstrust.org.uk/help-advice
- DEFRA outlines code of conduct for the welfare of dogs
www.gov.uk/government/publications/code-of-practice-for-the-welfare-of-dogs

Guide Dogs for the Blind and Hearing Dogs for Deaf People

We work with the Guide Dogs for the Blind Association to train dual purpose dogs for people who have physical disabilities and sight loss. Similarly we also work with Hearing Dogs for Deaf People for people who are physically disabled and also have hearing loss.

These dogs will often spend time training with each charity before we work together for placement and training with their partner. These dogs are referred to as dual-trained assistance dogs and will have specific coloured jackets, with both charities logos on them, to reflect their dual-purpose.

Other charities that support physical disabilities

If you are ineligible for a canine partner, or would like more information about what other charities may be able to provide, please contact our Applications Team to discuss this further.

Appendix

Appendix 1: Toilet area

Size Guidelines:

- Roughly six foot by six foot in size
- This can be of varying shapes to suit your garden, e.g. rectangular/ square/corner/ u-shaped
- Big enough for dog to move around and circle when toileting.

Constructing:

- Your dog's trainer may recommend three sides to be fenced if you have a large garden, to encourage easier off lead toileting eventually. You may be able to use natural barriers in your garden for this i.e. a shed, a current wall or a fence.
- It must have substantial drainage e.g. on soil or sloping towards a drain.
- It can be raised or ideally sunken into the ground to promote drainage.
- A weed membrane can be used between soil/base and toilet substrate to prevent weeds growing; but this still needs to allow drainage.
- It must be well lit for use during the evenings.
- It must be accessible and close to the house to make on-lead toileting possible for you even if it is raining.

For further advice on how to construct a toilet area, please contact the Applications Team.

Top layer of toileting area:

- This will be specified when matched to a dog so please await advice from our advanced trainer before laying down the top layer of the toileting area.
- Usually pebbles (20mm pea-gravel) or bark; other substrates materials may be utilised but must be discussed with a dogs trainer.
- Bark requires more regular cleaning and replacement on a regular basis.
- Both require regular raking to prevent bad odour.

You will need to have an area in mind to construct a toilet area. However, we would suggest not to build this until gaining specific advice directly from the Applications Team or from the Advanced Trainer on your matching visit.

Appendix 2: Applications appeal policy

Due to exceptionally high demand not every applicant will be successful in applying for a canine partner. Unfortunately, not everyone will meet the eligibility criteria and regrettably due to limited training places we will not be able to help every person who applies.

If you are successful on our opening date(s) in the first stage of application, you will go forward to be able to submit an official application form. Every applicant then undergoes a thorough assessment process before a decision is made about whether they can be added to our waiting list.

Taking on a canine partner is a major undertaking so every individual is very carefully considered before a final decision is made. However, if you are unhappy with our decision, you do have a right to appeal by following this process:

1. Submit a letter within 21 days of receiving your decline letter, to the Applications Manager at Canine Partners fully explaining your reasons for disputing our decision.
2. Canine Partners will consider your appeal within 21 days of receipt of your letter. Our decision will be based on the information provided at the time of your application.
3. We will contact you within seven days of considering your appeal to advise of the outcome.

Please note:

- Canine Partners' decision is final.
- If your circumstances change significantly you may re-apply as long as you provide supporting evidence of the change.
