Event Insurance

Keep it safe and legal

When you organise your own fundraising event in aid of Canine Partners, you are responsible for making sure it does not pose any risks to others. We would recommend you do a risk assessment and you may need to consider taking out public liability insurance for your event, which will protect you against claims made by third parties. In most cases, it is unlikely that Canine Partners' insurance policy will cover an event that you have organised.

Please tick this box to confirm you have understood your responsibilities as an event organiser:

If requesting a speaker or demonstration, is there a suitable space/arena? (Please provide a description of the space including size, sound system, screen, etc.)

Would you like us to promote the event through Canine Partners digital channels?

Please note: your event must be solely in aid of Canine Partners to appeal on our official Twitter account, closed Facebook group and website. Unfortunately, we can't promote your event across other social media channels as these reach a national audience and we would be inundated with requests from supporters to do this for local community-run events that are not for a national audience.
