Your Pet, Our Passion.®

This year, we are celebrating two extraordinary milestones: 35 years of transforming lives through our amazing assistance dogs, and the creation of our 1,000th partnership! This achievement reflects the incredible dedication and belief in our mission from everyone who has supported Canine Partners.

It is a privilege to be leading this charity at such a momentous time, having stepped into the role of CEO earlier this year after three years as Director of People. Over the past three and a half decades, Canine Partners has grown from a visionary idea into a pioneering charity, changing the lives of people with physical disabilities by creating dog-human partnerships that provide independence, confidence, and companionship. But none of this would have been possible without you – our devoted staff, volunteers, fundraisers and supporters. Your passion and commitment have built this charity into what it is today.

This special edition of Let's Go! celebrates all we've achieved together. Inside, you'll find inspiring stories from our partnerships, reflections on our journey, and a glimpse into our future. We're also excited to share behind-the-scenes moments from our BBC Lifeline Appeal, which highlighted the national impact of our work.

Thank you for being part of this journey. Here's to 35 years of changing lives and many more to come!

Lucy Eldred
CEO, Canine Partners

Where it all began...

As we mark 35 years of Canine Partners, we take this opportunity not just to celebrate, but to reflect on the incredible journey that has brought us here.

Canine Partners started in 1990, thanks to two amazing women, Anne Conway and Dr. Elizabeth Ormerod. They had a simple but powerful idea: to use the incredible abilities of dogs to help people with physical disabilities.

Anne's interest in this began in 1983. She attended an international conference in Vienna, where she saw firsthand how much a specially trained assistance dog could help someone. It was the amazing bond between them that really struck her. Inspired by the experience, as well as the pioneering work of Bonnie Bergin,

Anne Conway

Dr. Elizabeth Ormerod

Bonnie Bergin founded the world's first assistance dog programme in California, and Anne knew this could make a huge difference in the UK.

A few years later, in 1986, Anne met Elizabeth at a conference in Boston. Seeing the profound impact of these partnerships, they knew that bringing assistance dogs to the UK had to be done with meticulous planning, ensuring both the wellbeing of the dogs and the highest standards of support for their human partners.

Their research led them to The SOHO Foundation in the Netherlands, which helped train Canine Partners' first trainer, Nina Bondarenko, and laid the foundation for our work.

Dr. Elizabeth Ormerod

Establishing the charity was not easy, but Anne had a motto: "Perfect Planning Prevents Problems!" Everything was carefully considered, from setting high welfare standards to assembling a multi-disciplinary board of experts from both human and animal health fields. Their vision and determination saw the charity grow from an idea into a life-changing programme that has now created over 1,000 partnerships.

Reflecting on this journey, Elizabeth shares:

When we founded Canine Partners, we believed in the extraordinary potential of the human-animal bond. But even in our wildest dreams, we could not have imagined how many lives would be transformed. Every partnership is unique, yet the impact is always profound – offering independence, confidence, and companionship beyond measure. Seeing the charity flourish over the past 35 years has been humbling and I know Anne would be so proud of what we have all achieved. Each time I meet a partnership, I am reminded of the incredible power of these dogs, and I have no doubt Canine Partners will continue changing lives for generations to come.

As we celebrate this milestone, we're grateful to those who paved the way, and to those who continue to shape our future. Our mission remains the same as it was 35 years ago: transforming lives through these incredible partnerships.

Canine Partners through the years...

The 90's

2025 and beyond...

Meet our 1,000th partnership: Sue and canine partner James

Sue lives with Ehlers-Danlos Syndrome, a condition that affects her joints, muscles and ligaments. At one point, she was in constant pain, relying on crutches and a wheelchair, and spent six months bed-bound. Everyday tasks became impossible, and she depended on family and carers for everything. Her world had become incredibly small.

That started to change in 2012, when Sue was partnered with Quizzy, a Golden Retriever who brought the independence and emotional support she had longed for. After Quizzy's retirement, Sue was later partnered with Vinnie, a yellow Labrador. Together, these dogs changed everything.

“I had always been active, working as a nurse and later in human resources, but suddenly, I was stuck at home, unable to do the things I once took for granted. I had lost so much – my independence, my confidence, and even my sense of purpose. I felt trapped in my own body.

“They gave me a reason to get up in the morning. I'd lost all confidence going outside, but with a canine partner by my side, I felt safe again.”

Both dogs helped with everyday tasks like picking up dropped items, opening doors and assisting with undressing.

They also became Sue's constant companions, offering comfort during the toughest days. “Quizzy and Vinnie were my rock, adapting so quickly to my needs and giving me the confidence to start engaging with the world again. I even became a Parish Councillor and began public speaking – things I never thought I'd do again.”

However, when Vinnie retired, Sue found herself without the full-time assistance she had come to rely on.

“Quizzy and Vinnie gave me back my purpose in life, but without them, I wasn't able to live my life properly. I really felt the loss of my independence. I had to rely more on family and carers, which was difficult. Everyday tasks felt challenging and I found it harder to leave the house.

In 2024, Sue was partnered with James. “The moment I met James, I felt like I got a part of my life back. It was as if a weight had been lifted and I could be myself again. James helps me feel safe and supported, giving me the confidence to go out again. I wasn't sure I would ever regain that sense of freedom, but with James, I've found it.”

Behind every partnership is a whole community of dedicated people

Although they are still building their bond, Sue can already see James's incredible potential. “James is so clever and eager to help. I know he'll soon be assisting me with more tasks and doing all the little things that make such a big difference to my independence. I feel so lucky to have him in my life.”

Sue's husband, Mark, has also seen the transformation. “I've watched Sue go through the highs and lows of life with and without a canine partner and there's no question – these dogs change everything. Having a canine partner means Sue can live her life on her terms again and that peace of mind is priceless.”

Sue's story is just one of over 1,000 partnerships made possible by Canine Partners in the past 35 years, highlighting the life-changing impact these amazing dogs have. Here's to the next 1,000 partnerships!

A lasting legacy: Janet's gift to Canine Partners

Ian was one of the first people to be partnered with one of our assistance dogs back in the '90s, and his Golden Retriever, Alex, changed everything for him. To recognise the profound difference we made for Ian, his mother Janet has pledged a gift in her Will to Canine Partners, so more people can experience that life-changing support.

"My son Ian was 19 when he had a fall that changed his life. After six months in a spinal unit, he came home but couldn't move anything below his lower arms. Everyday tasks became difficult, and he lost his independence. Then, canine partner Alex, a Golden Retriever, came into his life and they bonded right away.

Alex revolutionised Ian's life in so many ways. He helped him dress and gave him the confidence to venture out independently again. Alex would grab items like a tin of soup and add them to the shopping trolley. He was even able to pay the cashier by standing on his hind legs - all day-to-day activities that Ian had lost the ability to do.

For Ian, Alex was more than just an assistance dog; he was a source of companionship, encouragement, and newfound freedom. With Alex by his side, Ian regained confidence, got back out into his community, and felt like he could live life his way. Sadly, Ian passed away in 2010, but Janet's support for us never stopped. She's been donating ever since, knowing how much we helped Ian and so many others.

When I eventually pass away, Canine Partners are getting a share of my estate. We owe so much to Canine Partners because of how they supported Ian.

Janet and her husband, Bob

Over a decade of dedication: Meet volunteer Jim

For over 15 years, Jim has been a cornerstone of Canine Partners, making a real difference by volunteering in a variety of roles. During that time, he's fostered over 60 dogs! Jim's journey with us began after his daughter completed a work experience placement with Canine Partners. He was inspired to get involved himself and began volunteering following his retirement.

While he no longer fosters regularly, Jim is occasionally on hand to offer foster support, providing our dogs with much-needed rest and relaxation. Now, he focuses his time on providing regular administrative support, using his extensive IT background. He assists with our database, maintains spreadsheets and helps with other admin tasks.

"Volunteering at Canine Partners is an incredibly fulfilling experience, not just because of the amazing people and dogs, but also because of the privilege of witnessing the incredible bond between a partner and their canine partner. Knowing that, even in a small way, I have played a part in changing someone's life is truly priceless.

"I wholeheartedly encourage others to volunteer for Canine Partners. It's a remarkable charity with a warm, supportive environment and the opportunity to make a meaningful impact. After more than 15 years of volunteering, I can honestly say I've never had a dull moment. Every role I take on is incredibly rewarding and enjoyable!"

Jim is also a vital part of Canine Partners' Volunteer Speaker Network, delivering talks to local community groups such as Masons, WI, U3A, Probus, and Rotary clubs.

Volunteers are the heart of our charity, and there are many ways you can make a difference. Whether it's looking after our puppies, becoming a speaker or offering your professional skills, your support helps us change lives.

Inside Canine Partners: Meet Gemma

This year, Executive Assistant and Impact Manager, Gemma, celebrates her 10th anniversary at Canine Partners.

Her journey with us began in 2012 when her dad, Martin, applied for an assistance dog after a spinal injury. In 2014, he was paired with Keith, a loving yellow Labrador who not only assisted with daily tasks but also brought companionship and confidence, transforming his life. Inspired, Gemma took on a 15,000-foot skydive, raising over £2,000 for Canine Partners before officially joining the team in 2015.

Gemma shares: "Having witnessed firsthand how a canine partner changed my dad's life, I know just how powerful these partnerships are. It's an absolute privilege to be part of this incredible charity."

Gemma's dedication and enthusiasm make her an invaluable member of our team, and her love for Canine Partners creates a positive impact every day!

Celebrating the human-pet bond

As a member of Assistance Dogs UK (ADUK), we work with other charities to maintain the highest standards in training and welfare. Together, we advocate for better accessibility, awareness, and policies for disabled people with assistance dogs.

In January, our CEO, Lucy Eldred, spoke at an APDAWG (All-Party Parliamentary Dog Advisory Welfare Group) meeting in Westminster, about the strong connection between people and animals. This event, organised by the Society for Companion Animal Studies and Our Special Friends, showed how animal-assisted services help vulnerable groups.

The APDAWG works to improve dog welfare through new laws. They bring together experts and people who care about animals to talk about dog welfare in the UK.

Before the meeting, Lucy and Elaine, who has canine partner Bentley, talked to members of Parliament. They explained how assistance dogs change lives and why we need laws to support these partnerships.

During the day, Lucy also met with experts, including our founder, Dr. Elizabeth Ormerod, and representatives from other assistance dog charities. They talked about how to improve assistance dog services in the future.

These discussions are important for driving positive change, encouraging teamwork across the sector and ensuring we can continue to transform the lives of people with physical disabilities.

We employ over 70 staff members and are supported by 11 trustees and 971 volunteers.

60% of the dogs we train become fully jacketed assistance dogs, while 40% take on alternative roles such as a home assistance canine, canine companion or dog ambassadors.

Behind the scenes of our BBC Lifeline Appeal

In March, we had the incredible honour of being featured in a special BBC Lifeline Appeal, presented by British actress Helena Bonham Carter, whose parents helped start Canine Partners 35 years ago.

The appeal showcased the life-changing impact of our assistance dogs through the moving stories of Alan and Hamlin, Sean and Lucas, and Harriet and Fevro. Each partnership highlighted how our dogs not only assist with everyday tasks, but also help restore independence, build confidence and provide constant companionship. The appeal showed how these dogs are so much more than just pets - they are a lifeline.

Filming took place at our National Training Centre in Leicestershire, where the BBC team captured key stages of our dogs' training, giving an exclusive look at how these amazing dogs learn the skills that will one day change someone's life. The filming was a huge team effort, with our staff, volunteers and partners all playing a key role in bringing the appeal to life.

Helena Bonham Carter's involvement brought warmth and authenticity to the appeal. Having been familiar with the charity since our very beginning, she has long understood the impact of our work.

During filming Helena met Daisie, one of our Dog Ambassadors and her handler, Partnership Trainer Ellie. Helena was amazed by Daisie's skills and even asked if she could empty her washing machine!

We are overwhelmed by the generosity of the public, whose support has already helped raise £24,500. Every donation will go directly towards providing more life-changing assistance dogs for disabled people across the UK.

To everyone who watched, donated and shared our appeal - thank you! Your kindness and support make our work possible, and together, we can continue to transform lives.

Partner perspectives: Life with a canine partner

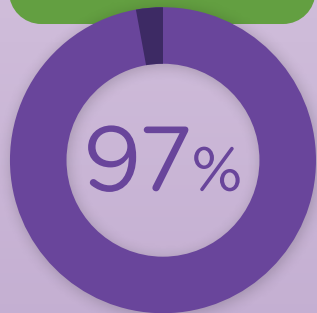

We've been creating life-changing partnerships for 35 years, and our latest partner voice survey reflects just how much our dogs transform the lives of those they support.

of our partners

say that their dog helps them live life to the fullest, overcoming daily challenges and breaking down barriers.

And for most...

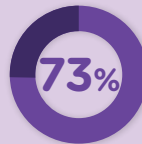

say their dog has exceeded their expectations, demonstrating the extraordinary abilities these dogs have.

Our dogs provide more than just practical help - they offer companionship, boost confidence, and improve emotional well-being.

OVER 93% OF OUR PARTNERS agree that their dog positively impacts their care, emotional support, and sense of safety.

Thanks to their dog...

need less professional care

need less help from family and friends

...leading to stronger personal relationships and greater independence.

Our dogs also enable our partners to work, study, and volunteer, with 53% saying their dog has opened doors to new opportunities.

We're making progress too. Since our last survey in 2022, 7% more of our partners feel confident, and 15% more feel independent.

As we celebrate 35 years, we're still focused on the challenges ahead - including our waiting lists - and doing all we can to help more people lead independent, fulfilling lives with a canine partner. With a clear five-year plan in place, we're in a strong position to create even more life-changing partnerships.

Big Birthday cake recipes!

As we celebrate 35 years of transforming lives, it's only right that our four-legged friends join the celebration! These simple, dog-friendly cake recipes are a perfect way to mark the milestone.

Fish Cake

1. Mash a 400g tin of fish (sardines, pilchards, or tuna) in a bowl.
2. Stir in one egg, then gradually add plain or wholemeal flour until a thick dough forms.
3. Microwave for 8-9 minutes, let it cool, then cut into bite-sized chunks.
4. Add a touch of Marmite for extra flavour.

Top tips

- Cut cakes into small chunks and freeze for later.
- Bake at 180°C for 15 minutes for a biscuit-like texture.
- Add small pieces of carrot, apple, or banana for a healthy treat.

Peanut Butter and Banana Cake

1. Mash one banana with three teaspoons of peanut butter (please ensure it is Xylitol-free so your treats are safe for dogs to eat).
2. Mix in one egg, then add flour until a dough forms.
3. Microwave for 8-9 minutes, cool and serve.

Canine College

For 35 years, we've been laying the foundation for our puppies' life-changing work by teaching them key tasks like touch, tug and retrieve. These core skills help them prepare for the many tasks they will go on to learn.

'Touch' is a simple action where the dog touches their nose to a person's hand or an object. This skill is incredibly useful for our dogs, helping them press buttons, open doors, and turn on lights.

But 'touch' isn't just for assistance dogs - it is a fantastic and easy trick that any pet dog can learn too! This simple training technique can strengthen the bond with your dog while teaching them a fun and practical skill!

Why teach 'touch'?

Teaching your dog to touch your hand or an object on command has many benefits:

- Builds focus: Helps your dog pay attention to you, even in distracting environments.
- Boosts confidence: Encourages shy or nervous dogs to interact with new things.
- Provides mental stimulation: Engages your dog's brain and prevents boredom.
- Useful for training: Can be used to guide your dog into different positions or help with recall.

How to teach 'touch'

1. Hold out your hand: Present your open palm a few inches from your dog's nose.
2. Wait for curiosity: Most dogs will naturally sniff or investigate your hand.
3. Reward immediately: As soon as your dog touches your hand with their nose, say "yes!" or use a training clicker and reward with a treat.
4. Repeat and add a cue: Once your dog understands the action, introduce the word "touch" as they do it.
5. Increase difficulty: Gradually move your hand further away or use different objects for your dog to target.

Celebrating our Corporate partnerships

We rely on our corporate partners to create life-changing partnerships; we couldn't transform lives without them. And, as we celebrate 35 years, we recognise their incredible contribution to our journey.

This year marks 25 years of support from Purina. Over the years, Purina has named and sponsored puppies through training, organised fundraising initiatives and provided discounted food for our dogs. Their employees also volunteer at events and take on challenging fundraising activities.

David Wilson Homes has provided financial support and expertise to develop our facilities, including a recent accessible bungalow renovation at our National Training Centre.

The CPR Cup, organised by Collins Property Recruitment, is one of our largest corporate fundraising events. Teams from London property firms compete in a football tournament to raise money. To celebrate our 35th anniversary, this year's event aims to raise a record £35,000 for Canine Partners. During a recent visit to our National Training Centre, the team at CPR met one of their sponsored dogs, Howard, who has since been successfully partnered.

We are extremely thankful to all our corporate supporters for their continued support and dedication, which enables us to transform even more lives, one partnership at a time.

Pets Corner has been a key supporter since 2012, raising significant funds through in-store events and sales.

Become a corporate supporter today and help us create more life-changing partnerships. We offer dedicated support and a fun range of ways to get involved. To learn more, contact our Corporate Team at corporate@caninepartners.org.uk
